KS3 and 4 RECOMMENDED LISTENING

The History Team recommend that you download BBC Sounds if you have a smart phone, I pad or tablet. If you have a TV licence in your household, it's free to use and has so many brilliant things to listen to. Alternatively, Spotify and Apple also have services with a great range of listening, including those listed below. Please note that you should check with a parent or carer first to see if they feel the listening is suitable for you.

Here are a few of our favourites that we would like to recommend:

The Nuremberg Trials – BBC Sounds. BBC Sounds - Nuremberg: The Trial of the Nazi War Criminals - Available Episodes The story of what happened to high profile Nazis after the War and the trial that they faced for crimes against peace and War crimes.

History's Secret Heroes - BBC Sounds. BBC Sounds - History's Secret Heroes - Available Episodes Helena Bonham Carter looks at little known stories from World War Two.

Voices of the First World War – BBC Sounds. BBC Sounds - Voices of the First World War - Available Episodes Read by Dan Snow with many archive recordings made by the IWM and the BBC before the First World War generation passed away. Gripping, brave and sad.

I Am Not A Monster: The Shamima Begum Story – BBC Sounds. BBC Sounds - I'm Not a Monster - Available Episodes Journalist Josh Baker explores the divisive and difficult story of Shamima Begum, who left her London home to join ISIS in Syria. There is also a series looking at the story of an American woman, Sam, who also left to join with her husband – it is listed with this series.

You're Dead To Me – BBC Sounds. BBC Sounds - You're Dead to Me - Available Episodes From the History of Bollywood to the Battle of Hastings. A panel look at stories in History and include funny and weird bits too!

The History Hour – BBC Sounds. BBC Sounds - Search results for the history hour international perspectives on History. One episode looks at the first Air Jordan trainers and Imelda Marcos's 3,000 pairs of shoes.
